3. Click OK. Your image opens in Photoshop. Photoshop is represented by the file's icon. 4. If necessary, choose Adobe Photoshop Elements 11 from the Application button, and select the new document you created in the last step. A document window opens, with the image visible (Figures 3-4 to 3-5). 5. Using the Eraser tool, click and drag over the image to erase anything you don't want to keep. You may need to experiment a little to get the brush settings just right to erase with precision. Figure 3-6 shows an example of perfect erasing. A black brush is selected with which to do the erasing. Its size (2 in this example) determines the amount of erasing that will happen. The eraser, which you control using the Tool Options or Eraser menu (see step 8), is placed over the unwanted parts of the image. When you drag across the image, the brush deposits color from the background (or, eraser color) to the foreground (unwanted color). In this case, the colors behind the woman are deposited in front of the face.

Protecting the Environment of our City The City Council of Santa Cruz, California has launched an urban forestry campaign to improve the city's urban forests and to protect water quality. A new partnership between Santa Cruz's Recreation and Parks Department and the Natural Lands Conservancy will focus on gathering input from the public and neighborhood groups. The first meeting will be at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 9, 2010, at Santa Cruz High School Auditorium, 901 Red Hill Avenue in Santa Cruz. The Urban Forestry Initiative is part of the City's Sustainable Communities Initiative, which promotes the environmental and economic health of its communities through strategic planning, land use, and public-private partnership. The initiative's goal is to create a 20-year plan to improve the city's parks, enhance the quality of life for its residents and enhance the natural beauty of the area's forests and green space. "I think it's going to be a great way to get information about what people want in our community," said Mayor Michela T. "Michelle" Alioto-Pier. "This is a natural way to let our community members know we're thinking about their health, their well-being, the value of our trees and to come together and get something positive for everyone to be involved in." The meeting will include information about the initiative's goals, vision and goals and will include an opportunity for stakeholders to provide input. The city's Rec and Parks Department is being supported by the Natural Lands Conservancy through the Sustainable Communities Grant
